VILLA CONTROLS LARGE PORTION OF CHIHUAHUA CARRANZISTAS ADMIT

DETAILS OF RAID ON SAN ANDROS IN BORDER REPORTS

Refugee Declares De Facto Troops Are Making No Effort to Pursue Bandits

EXPECT CHIHUAHUA RAID

Thousands of Carranzista Troops Rushed to City in Anticipation of Attack

JUAREZ, Mexico, Oct. 20.—A battle is now raging twenty-five miles outside Chihuahua City between Villista bandits and a heavy force of Mexican de facto troops, according to reports wired to Carranza militia headquarters here Friday afternoon.

Nearly 4,000 men are engaged in the fighting, according to these reports. The Villistas are led by Villa in person.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 20.—The entire western and southern portions of the Mexican state of Chihuahua are now under control of Pancho Villa, according to admissions made by Mexican de facto officials at Juarez, as details of the bandit chief's bold raid last Tuesday on the town of San Andros began to reach the border Friday.

The town of San Andros is only twenty-five miles west of Chihuahua City, on the Mexico Northwestern railway line. Despite protestations of vigorous pursuit of the Villistas, refugees at Juarez declare that Carranza troops are making no effort to chase the bandits and are avoiding contact with them.

Thousands of Carranzista troops brought from Southern Mexico are being held in Chihuahua City to reinforce the de facto garrison there, as military authorities expect another attack soon upon the city by Villa.

Villa has ordered every detachment of his command operating in Chihuahua to inform the Mexican people he is personally with that band in order to cause confusion as to his actual location.

HUNDREDS BRAVE WEATHER TO HEAR VETERAN SEAMAN

Andrew Furuseth Draws Big Crowds Despite Cold Weather in Trempealeau

Bad weather and sticky roads made little impression on the size of the audiences which greeted Andrew Furuseth, president of the Seamen's union, in his tour of Trempealeau county Friday, according to word reaching here at noon. The snowy old sailor made all of his scheduled meetings close to his time card, and hundreds of farmers had gathered at each place to hear his exposition of the much-maligned La Follette Seamen's Bill.

Mr. Furuseth spoke at Pigeon Falls at 10:30; Blair at 2 o'clock, and was heading for Galesville for an afternoon speech at 4 o'clock.

Indications were that the Trempealeau county reception would find a counter-part in La Crosse, where the veteran labor leader is scheduled for an exposition of the Seamen's act at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in Yeomen hall.

Mr. Furuseth was expected in La Crosse at 6:30.

GERMAN YOKOHAMA BANK CLOSED BY JAPANESE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—The Deutsch-Asiatische bank of Yokohama has been closed by the Japanese government, according to Tokyo newspapers received here Friday. As a result several thousand prisoners of war and hundreds of Germans residing in Japan are penniless, as this action ends the American consulate's monthly distribution of 2,000 yen, drawn from Germany's funds in the bank, for German relief.

The Japanese, it is rumored, closed the bank on suspicion that funds were being sent to aid the German cause in Europe and to pay spies.

PRO-GERMAN AND PRO-ALLY OPINION SCORED BY HUSTING

Senator in Yeomen Hall Speech Defends Neutrality of the Wilson Administration

TRIUMPH IN NEGOTIATION

British Controversy Will Be Settled Like Lusitania Incident if Wilson Is Endorsed

Arraignment in unequivocal terms of pro-German and pro-ally activities in the United States, a plea for a greater nationalism in America, and praise for President Wilson in his conduct of the foreign affairs of the nation featured the address Thursday night of Paul O. Husting, Mayville, junior representative from Wisconsin in the United States senate, before three hundred people in Yeomen hall.

"The war across the water came as a bolt from a clear sky," Mr. Husting said in leading up to his discussion of foreign relations. "Few, except probably the monarchs immediately involved, knew of the worldwide disturbance coming. When the conflict broke it was inevitable. It should teach the heartstrings of people in America, natives of or connected by blood ties with the belligerent nations."

Take Off Goggles
"As Vice-president Marshall recently declared in Milwaukee, one class of people looked through English goggles to see if we were harsh enough with Germany, and another class looked through German spectacles to see if we were harsh enough with England. The vice-president asked the people to take off their 'specs' and goggles and look at the situation as American citizens."

"There are certain organizations at work in this country, I am sorry to say, which have threatened with personal and political annihilation persons who have continued to serve the interests of the nation and not the wishes of the propagandists. And they are campaigning against the president."

That the nation needs a calamity to bring it to its sense of nationalism, was the declaration of Mr. Husting. The war in Europe will end eventually, but differences of opinion and hatreds will continue, he said.

"Nothing will be settled except which nations are the stronger," the senator said. "We, the United States, must prove the doctrine that all men are created free and equal. Failure to do this would mean the collapse of inspiration to the entire world. Therefore, we must hold together with no internal differences to disrupt the country."

Husting answered in ringing tones the charge of the administration's opponents that United States neutrality has been violated through shipment of munitions.

"Where has any political party in its platform written a plank against shipment of arms from this country?" the senator challenged. "Wilson's acts in the matter have been entirely within the neutrality laws."

"It was a critical time in Washington, more critical than the average citizen realizes, when resolutions came up for warning American citizens from the high seas. The administration said it couldn't consistently abandon the rights of Americans on the seas. Had the resolutions gone through, the nation would have entered a period of anarchy."

Wilson Vindicated
"But the president's course was soon justified by admission from Germany that the Lusitania sinking was unjustifiable, with offer of reparation. The controversy with England over her sea policy will be settled, the senator said, if we give the president time."

"Our opponents said war should have been declared on Germany when the neutrality of Belgium was violated. There is nothing in any treaty requiring the United States to enforce the inviolability of Belgium. Haven't we enough to do to take care of our own business, to enforce the Monroe doctrine?"

"No president has done more to enforce the Monroe doctrine than has Wilson. Instead of enemies in the western hemisphere we have none but friends."

"Our enemies declare we should have declared war when the Lusitania was sunk," he said.

WILSON WOMEN TEAR DOWN FLAGS OF OPPOSITION

Several Women Fall in Near Riot During the President's Visit in Chicago

NATIONALISM IS KEYNOTE

Wilson Seemingly Throws Off Party Lines in Appeal to "Forward Looking Progressives"

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—An attempted "silent demonstration" by members of the National Woman's party in front of the Auditorium developed into a near riot on Thursday in which banners opposing Wilson were torn from the demonstrators and trampled upon and the women roughly handled.

President Wilson, who came here on Thursday to explain his views on problems facing the nation, was seated in an automobile a few hundred feet away when the demonstration started, but passed into a building and was not a witness to the scene that followed.

Shouting "Shame, disgrace and get the banners," a crowd of several hundred, sprinkled with women, charged the banner holders. Umbrellas and canes were used in the destruction of the placards. Many of the women were knocked down and nearly all were roughly handled, especially those who strove to retain their banners.

Under Police Guard
The excitement continued until all the banners had been seized. With disheveled hair and soiled and torn clothing the women marched back to their headquarters under police guard.

Charges that the police sympathized with the rioters and failed to protect the demonstrators were made by Mrs. Josephine Pearce and Mrs. E. L. Mattice, officials of local woman's republican clubs.

"There were all kinds of policemen standing about merely looking on, not moving a hand," said Mrs. Pearce. Some of them didn't seem to want to help us. I saw policemen deliberately stand nearby and laugh at us while we were being beaten and the banners torn from our hands."

Women Knocked Down
"We were merely standing quietly holding our banners, and not harming one. Suddenly there was a regular riot. They grabbed our banners, trampled on them and knocked us down. It was terrible."

New Nationalism
There is no doubting now that the president has embarked upon a determined effort to bring out as the one big issue of the campaign "a new nationalism," first forcibly set forth in his Omaha address and later amplified in his Indianapolis speeches. Friday the idea stood out in a further exposition of this in Chicago. In the Press club speech he placed emphasis on the need of united progressive forces to accomplish the purposes of American business. In his second address he urged co-operation of capital and labor to serve the end which he said must be served by the United States showing the world how to place the cause of labor on a par with that of the employer and the rights of humanity "above the rights of sovereignty." Finally in his speech at the Stock Yards pavilion, where he was greeted by the greatest and most demonstrative throng that has heard him at any time since the campaign opened, the president further enlarged upon his theme and said that men who come to this country are expected "to put a new affection, a new allegiance, above every other affection and loyalty" in a "triumphant illustration of the spirit of America in the service of mankind."

Discards Party Lines?
In this effort to unite the people of the country for the purpose of accomplishing the big task which, he says, will face America when the war is over, the president appears to have thrown aside party lines in his out and appeal to all "forward looking progressives." He will continue the same policy in speeches delivered away from Shadow Lane during the balance of the campaign, hinting only at the dangers of ousting a powerful and policy which has guided the nation along a "certain known course" for a power and policy whose course is "uncertain and unknown."

President Elated
CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 20.—With echoes of the greatest demonstration ever tendered him still ringing in his ears, President Wilson was returning home Friday. He himself and all his lieutenants are happy as a result of the Chicago visit.

"The greatest yet," Secretary Tumulty said with unrestrained enthusiasm.

An ovation from start to finish. The women in this part of the country are thoroughly aroused to the issues of the campaign and they want the president returned to office," was

Lost His Purse? Should Say Not! He Wants Arrest

Whether John Larson, Lansing farm hand, was robbed, or whether he stuck his purse into the waist-band of his overalls instead of into his pocket and so dropped it, is a point at which Larson and the police are in issue. At any rate, Larson is minus about $30, he told the police.

When the Lansingite reported the loss of his purse, he said he was robbed. The police, however, discovered that it was practically impossible to get at Larson's pocket because of his overalls. They believe it was as hard for Larson himself to put his purse there as for anyone to get in and take it out. But John can't see it. He scorned the suggestion that he advertise for his lost purse. He wants somebody arrested.

TEUTONS REGAIN TRENCHES FROM FRENCH, CLAIM

Largest Part of Positions Lost Wednesday to French on the Somme Are Reported Recaptured

Claim Trenches Recaptured
BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I., Oct. 20.—The largest part of the trenches captured by the British west of the road from Eaucourt L'Abbaye to Le Barque Wednesday was recaptured by the Germans on Thursday, it was officially announced on Friday.

Claim Tanks Destroyed
"During the last great attack, it is only now reported, the British used some of their much heralded armored automobiles," added the official statement. "Three of the so-called tanks are lying before our lines, destroyed by our artillery fire."

"There was a mutual artillery duel on both sides of the Somme during the rainy weather Thursday. The advances of English detachments north of Courcellette and east of Le Sars failed."

Declare Russians Fail
"On the front of Prince Leopold of Pavia, several Russian counter attacks before the positions were gained north of Sviniaevka on the Stochod, broke down with heavy losses. South-west of Sviniaevka on the west bank of the Maryovka, German battalions stormed an important Russian height, taking the position with its adjoining lines and repulsing counter attacks. The enemy left fourteen officers, 2,050 men and eleven machine guns in our hands."

"On Archduke Carl's front the enemy was thrown from the summit of Mount Rusuloi. On the Transylvanian frontier ridges fighting progresses. Activity on the Dobrudja front is becoming livelier."

"The Serbian attack in the Macedonian bend, after temporary successes, has been halted."

Artillery Fire Heavy
PARIS, Oct. 20.—Artillery was somewhat active on the Somme front Thursday night, particularly in the region of Sailly and Belloy, but there were no infantry attacks, it was officially announced Friday.

In Lorraine, a German surprise party was checked near Bezange. Elsewhere there were no developments.

British Redoubts Bombaraded
LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Germans heavily bombarded Stuff and Schwabell redoubts north of Thiepval Thursday night. General Haig reported Friday afternoon. British troops carried out two small raids on enemy trenches near Loos.

MARKLE WANTS ANOTHER HERE SIXTY-FIVE YEARS TO START PIONEER CLUB

If there happens to be any reader of this family journal who has been in La Crosse or the vicinity for sixty-five years, he will confer a favor upon Emanuel Markle of the town of Shelby, a great favor by calling upon him. Mr. Markle wants to start a club, to celebrate the sixty-fifth anniversary of his arrival in the county. If he can find just one other member, that will be enough for the club. Mr. Markle says, but he privately admits that he thinks he will have to be president, board of directors and membership all by himself.

It was just sixty-five years ago, on Friday, Mr. Markle reached the little group of houses and Indian wigwags known as Prairie La Crosse, having driven in a "prairie schooner" from his boyhood home in Park county, Indiana.

Mr. Markle, who is now close to eighty years of age, celebrated the anniversary of his arrival here, by a trip from his farm to the city. The team he drove wasn't much like the played-out span he hitched before one of the few little stores in La Crosse sixty-five years ago, for Mr. Markle has prospered since then. He has gained the reputation of being one of the most progressive farmers in the county.

"There were seven houses here when I drove into town," Mr. Markle said. "There were a few little stores and a saloon. The saloon had one bottle and two glasses."

PRESBYTERIANS WITHDRAW FROM UNION SERVICE

Session Rescinds Agreement at Special Meeting Thursday Night

FEAR MERGER COMMITTEE

Believe Church Board Does Not Wish to Have Attitude Misconstrued

Fearing, it is said, that participation in the announced triple union service at the Congregational church on Sunday would give rise to the belief that they are in favor of the recently proposed merger of the Presbyterian, Baptist and Congregational churches, the session of the First Presbyterian, at a special meeting Thursday evening, decided to withdraw from the joint service.

Members of the church Friday morning received the following message on postal cards:

"All regular services—including the morning service—will be held at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday, October 22, 1916. You are cordially invited to the services."

"By order of the session."

Members of the session were reticent Friday in regard to what passed at the meeting, but that the proposed merger was the topic of discussion is believed evident from the fact that the union service had already been announced from the church pulpit last Sunday. Advocates of the merger plan, it is said, regard the joint service as in the nature of a test of sentiment as the proposed consolidation.

Members of the Presbyterian Session referred all inquiries as to the meeting to W. E. Walker, clerk. Mr. Walker could not be reached at his office Friday afternoon.

SALOONIST DECLARES IN HEALEY CASE HE PAID $250 TO KEEP LICENSE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Patrick J. Gainer, saloonkeeper here, testified in Judge Olson's court Friday he had paid a man whom he did not know $250 for getting his license restored after the police had closed his place.

Gainer was a witness in the hearing for a warrant for the arrest of Chief of Police Healey and others on charges of conspiracy and malfeasance, sought by MacLay Hoyne, state's attorney, and a political enemy of the Thompson city hall ring, of which Healey is a member.

HUGHES, TIRED, REACHES NEW YORK

By PERRY ARNOLD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Very tired out, but entirely confident, Republican Nominee Hughes reached New York Friday for five days rest before starting on the home stretch in his campaigning. He planned at once to go to the Astor hotel and will probably remain over night conferring with Chairman Wilcox as to the progress of the campaign. On Saturday he will go to Montclair, N. J., to rest Wednesday.

As tentatively arranged his program contemplates a series of speeches in New York state, beginning in Brooklyn on Wednesday night. From New York state he will swing westward into Ohio and Indiana, again.

Hughes is determined to save his thunder from now on and will make only big speeches. His wind-up campaign tour will consist of mass meetings in large cities. So far as possible attempt will be made by his managers to avoid the wear and tear of back platform addresses in small cities.

SECRET SERVICE MEN FOIL ATTEMPT OF MAN TO ENTER WILSON CAR

BREMEN OWNERS DECLARE BOAT IS LOST, REPORTS

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 20.—The Ocean company, owners of the German commerce submarine, consider the Bremen lost, according to advices from Bremen. There is much grief among families of members of the crew, most of whom lived in Bremen. The Deutschland's return to the United States has been indefinitely postponed, these advices stated.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 20.—Paul G. L. Hilken, admitting Friday that the German merchant submarine Bremen is a month overdue, said he feared the vessel had met with an accident and that she had been lost with all her crew. This is the first time that anyone in a position to know the German side of the story of the Bremen has permitted his name to be used in connection with the belief that the ship is lost. Hilken is the American manager of the Deutsche Ozean Reederei, owners of the Bremen and Deutschland.

PACK GATHERS AT GALESVILLE FOR ANNUAL HUNT

One Man Arrives for Reunion Trials with Pack of Fifteen Hounds in Leash

START HUNTING SATURDAY

Foxes Are Reported Plenty and Good Sport Is Promised for the Pack

GALESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Every dog has his day, and these are dog days at Galesville. Hundreds of hounds, coon, fox, rabbit and nondescript, towed their bronzed owners off every train that stopped at the village Friday, and about the tented city which has reared itself at the upper end of the lake the air is fairly vocal with the baying of canine hunters, pierced now and then with sharp yelps and savage growls when two champions fly at each other to determine the cock of the camp.

It is an occasion to send every sharp-nosed fox of the bluff country hiking for his earth, for it is the gathering of the annual hunters' reunion at Galesville, unique classic of houn' dogs and their admirers from all this part of the state. Saturday the hunting begins over all the upland country roundabout the village, and the trials will continue until Tuesday, with nightly coon-hunts to vary the program of the day's trapping in the wake of the baying pack.

One hundred arrived Friday morning with fifteen hounds of assorted sizes, and many others came in during the day with from one to half a dozen favorite dogs. Most of the animals are blooded beasts of notable lineage, but the reunion is a democratic affair, and John Smith's ratty little mongrel with the sharp nose stands just as high in the pack as the scion of a dozen royal ancestors, so long as he can keep his muzzle on the trail.

Sixty odd dog fanciers are expected on the ground by night, and Saturday morning will see the start of the trials.

Sunday's program includes a drag race, which will be run in sight of the hundreds of spectators who annually assemble along the roadside. Fox hunting will be the principal sport. The report has gone out that more red foxes are in this section than for many years past. Most of the prize fox hounds in western Wisconsin will be on the trail, and Renyard will have to take to the streams if he eludes them. Fox hunting will be on by night as well as by day.

The session will continue until next Tuesday. Meals will be served on the grounds.

LONG BLADED KNIFE AND MANY CHISELS IN MAN'S SATCHEL

Would-be Assailant Says He Did Not Like Wilson's Prosecution of Foreign Affairs

BELIEVE CULPRIT INSANE

Two Attempts Made to Board Automobile Before the Man Breaks and Is Caught by Pittsburgh Detectives

BY ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 20.—During the president's ride about Pittsburgh Friday on his layover while enroute to Shadow Lawn from Chicago, a man carrying a black satchel made determined efforts to jump on the running board of the president's car. He was finally overpowered and hustled off to a station house by policemen.

At the station house the man gave the name of Richard Cullen. He is a Pittsburgher, 22 years old. When questioned he said that he was dissatisfied with the president's handling of European affairs, but did not admit that he intended to attack the president.

In the satchel, police say, was found a long bladed knife and several chisels. The clasp of the satchel was unfastened.

After examining the prisoner the police expressed the belief that Cullen is insane and decided to hold him for investigation. His conversation at first quiet in tone, soon became bitter and he roundly denounced the president's policies.

The attack occurred right in the heart of the city, at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street. The crowd there was very dense and the care was forced to move slowly.

Cullen leaped on the running board and tried to clamber over the door. He was grasped by a secret service man riding with the president and pushed into the street. Jumping up quickly he caught the automobile and duplicated his efforts. Forced backward by those in the car and pulled by persons in the crowd, he fell down.

The president's car was halted when Secret Service Operative De Flore, a former member of the Pittsburgh detective force, leaped from the automobile and pummelled Cullen after the latter made his second effort to reach the president. The crowd closed about the car and it was several minutes before fifty police gathered from all directions, lifted clubs and drove it back. Bleeding at the nose and from the mouth, Cullen broke away from De Flore by swinging the satchel around with his free hand and bringing it down hard on the detective's wrist. It was heavy with the tools carried by Cullen, who is a mechanic. Bursting through into the street, Cullen made his unsuccessful effort to escape by running away.

The president, Mrs. Wilson, Democratic State Chairman Joseph F. Guffey and two secret service men were in the president's car. While the president's bodyguard twice threw Cullen from the running board, the president remained very calm. Mrs. Wilson shared his apparent confidence that the secret service men would take care of the would-be assailant.

The crowd seemed slow to grasp the situation.

During the scuffle between Cullen and secret service men, a loaded revolver fell into the street. Whether the gun belonged to Cullen or the detectives, the police were unable to say. Bystanders who saw the revolver fall disagreed as to who dropped it.

Dr. Barclay, physician of the Cullen family, declared that Cullen is deranged.

Further Relief Rests On Finding Of Commission

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—No further important relief of border troops is contemplated by the war department until after the American-Mexican commission at Atlantic City reaches a decision, it was learned on Friday. If this is satisfactory, the troops, it is said, will return in a body. Otherwise, all will probably be left at their present border stations.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

THE DECEITFULNESS OF APPEARANCE

By ANNA PHILIPS SEE

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

John and Jeffrey Poindexter were the twinmost twins that ever happened. When they were curly-haired youngsters even their mother couldn't always tell them apart and their father often spanked the wrong child for the right offense. As they grew up and became of marriageable age, they found the girls of the town noticeably coy. No one wished to marry a Poindexter twin and never be sure of her husband's identity. It almost savored of bigamy turned the other way round.

When the twins grasped this fact they separated. John went into business in New York, while Jeffrey remained in the home town. After a few months, the same town was enlivened by invitations to the wedding of John Poindexter and Miss Marjorie Brooks, of New York City. At the wedding, Jeffrey Poindexter acted as best man. The minister, in an excess of zeal, nearly married him to the pretty bride and, later, she herself, under a misapprehension, tried to carry him off on a bridal trip.

After John and Marjorie had settled down in their brand new flat, with brand new furniture and a brand new maid, John suddenly felt a longing to have Jeffrey live with them. The "twin feeling" came over him so firmly that it rivaled his affection for his wife. He had been fond of Jeff for a long, long time—longer than he had of his bride. Marjorie was good-natured and said yes; she did not give the matter much thought. In fact, she never wasted time thinking, for feeling was so much easier.

Jeffrey accepted the invitation with joy. He was glad to be with John, he appreciated Marjorie's housekeeping for she was a born home-maker, and he had reasons of his own for wishing to be in New York.

For a time all was well. The first unpleasantness was the abrupt departure of Katie, the middle-aged domestic treasure. She considered the augmented family uncanny. It jolted her nerves to come home late at night against the rules and find one of the men just opening the door with his latchkey. She never knew whether to say she had been to her grandmother's wake's wake, supposing the young man was her master, or just to pass the time of night. If it happened to be Mr. Jeffrey, who would understand. When she did give warning it was to the twins collectively. She had just served them their breakfast, for the mistress slept late that morning, and to wait on two individuals identically alike even to their voices and neckties made her feel queer.

"You see, Mr. Poindexter," she explained. "I've tuk the pledge and I never touch a drop no more, praise be. But if I should be after stayin' here and seein' double all the time, I might as well have the fun of it. I'm afraid to stay, Mr. Poindexter, so I'm leavin' come Saturday."

And on Saturday she went. Marjorie was much cast down at this defection, but she revived when she secured at the agency a wonder who was willing to step immediately into Katie's shoes. The bride glided in her luck to the twins.

"Why, boys, I never saw such a pretty intelligent girl in a servant's bureau in my life. She knows all about hygiene and domestic science and—everything—"

"Whew! I can see you being taught your place, Miss Brooks," said her husband, who was given to addressing his wife thus disrespectfully.

"As long as my place isn't in the kitchen, I don't care," declared Marjorie gayly.

The new maid's first appearance before the assembled family was at dinner time. When she entered the dining-room, at sight of the two men she turned pale, then crimsoned, to her pretty blonde hair, and the tray fell from her hands with a loud clatter. People were often astonished when they first beheld the almost uncanny likeness of the Poindexter twins, but no one had ever seemed quite so overcome as did Jane Gaylord. Marjorie regarded her with reproach and John with amusement, but Jeffrey gazed at the girl with a look of amazement which never left his face during the meal. Jane, however, soon recovered her composure and acquitted herself so admirably that the lady of the house was greatly pleased with her maid's abilities.

So great did these abilities prove to be during the succeeding days that Marjorie was overawed. She confided in her husband that she didn't know what to make of Jane.

"Of course she's very respectful and a perfect wonder at getting things done, but, John, she's queer and you should see the books and papers she reads about wage earners and industrial problems and all that. She keeps a note book, too, or a diary or something. I just know we're in it, and it makes me nervous."

John refused to worry about Jane. "You imagine a lot, Marjorie. That girl's a perfect jewel, don't go looking for flaws. Just enjoy it while it lasts."

This advice was so good that John's wife adopted it and planned a little visit out of town, relying on Jane's abilities to run the house. At the last moment she weakened in her purpose, for Jeffrey Poindexter was sent west on business for his firm. "I'm going to stay at home. You'll be lonesome with Jeffrey away, too," Marjorie declared. But John would not hear of her giving up a week's pleasure and she reluctantly carried out her plans.

When the day came for her return she telegraphed her husband to meet her at the Union Station. On her arrival no John with a smile of greeting stood in the mob behind the rope, and she was disappointed. To be treated thus after her first absence from her husband! All the long journey up town she nursed her disappointment till it became a grievance. When she reached home at 5 o'clock she was in anything but a wifely frame of mind.

The parlor was in exquisite order, but empty, as might have been expected. Proceeding down the hall toward the kitchen she heard voices —Jane's and a man's. The man's voice was that of a Poindexter twin. Jeff was in Denver, therefore—ah, now, she knew why John hadn't met her at the station. She crept to the door and listened, not guiltily, but boldly.

"But, darling," said the man, "why keep on with this absurd arrangement? I hate deceit. Don't you love me more than statistics?"

Jane's tones were calm and usual. "Of course, dear. I know we're in a false position, but I must stay here till my notes are finished. You remember this set on the domestic helper will complete the book."

"Yes, that's the way you always put me off. And you say you love me—"

"I do," interrupted Jane.

At the unmistakable sound of a kiss which followed, Marjorie felt herself grow faint and sick. Noiselessly she turned the knob, opened the door a crack and peeped in. The man whose back was toward her was John—perfidious John—and his arm was firmly encircling Jane's trim waist. It was plain to see that the two were lovers. Marjorie choked back a sob to listen again. In a voice of resignation the man took up the conversation:

"Well, then, I suppose we'll have to go on keeping everything dark. When Marjorie comes back—"

"Marjorie is back!" cried Mrs. John Poindexter, dramatically throwing wide the door. The guilty ones jumped apart at her sudden appearance and the man turned his full face toward her.

"Why, Jeffrey Poindexter!" cried his sister-in-law, "I thought you were in Denver!"

"Well, I was, but I got home this morning. I guess you've surprised our secret, Marjorie," he added with some embarrassment, looking toward Jane, who still remained calm. "You see, we've been engaged for two years, but Jane won't marry me till she's finished the book, which takes a lot of investigation into the life of wage earners. Just now she's playing that she's a 'domestic helper' to see how it feels. Of course, she didn't know you were my sister-in-law when she came here," he hastened to say, as he saw Marjorie's darkening brow.

"Indeed I didn't," corroborated Jane Gaylord. "But when I had taken the place I couldn't very well withdraw. Besides—here a sudden blush and smile overcame her expression—"besides, I really couldn't forego living under the same roof with Jeff, even as the cook lady!"

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidities and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

SUDDEN DEATH

Before an insurance company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test your water and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout, or sleep is disturbed two or three times at night—take heed, before too late!

You can readily overcome such conditions and prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric in tablet form." You can obtain Anuric at almost all drug stores. It was the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo.

The Searchlight

Cotton-wood for Butter Boxes

The scarcity of white paper material is causing the most rigid investigation into the use of spruce wood for purposes for which some other material might serve. The United States Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin, has lately been experimenting in using cotton-wood as a substitute for spruce, poplar and ash for making butter boxes. Cotton-wood, when green, gives off an odor, which, it was believed, would be absorbed by the butter. Tests have been made of boxes constructed of thoroughly seasoned cotton-wood. Butter packed in them was set away for a week and at the end of that time, professional butter graders decided that the butter contained no trace of foreign flavor. The use of cotton-wood for food packing will release millions of pounds of wood for paper making each year.

IS CHURCH UNION HERE POSSIBLE

The proposal to unite the First Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches is not lacking in the elements of logic. It has support both upon economic grounds and upon the basis of Christian service. Its timeliness is due, not only to permanent conditions, but to the fact that two of the churches are now without permanent pastors.

Church union is a growing idea, the value of which does not lack practical demonstration. It seems wise where no vital differences of creed intervene. However, specific cases require delicate adjustment, and consolidation not so founded as to bring permanent agreement and unity of purpose may lose more in efficiency than is gained through union.

One not versed in the doctrinal distinctions of protestant churches is hardly qualified to pass upon the feasibility of their reconciliation. However, it is possible that the plan now under discussion is affected by no conditions calculated to prevent a useful union. In any event, success can be assured only by complete understanding. It is not safe to proceed on more or less loose generalities and trust to the future to make its own adjustments. Like men, churches take on certain characteristics, and to harmonize these and co-ordinate the efforts they inspire, is a task that should be performed as a condition precedent to union.

A union of these three churches would save a vast sum in investment and overhead expense. Overlapping of efforts would be avoided. Ample capital would facilitate endeavor. Co-operation would insure efficiency.

Probably the greatest obstacle to union is the possible existence of conflicting points of view. Big churches have a tendency to substitute institutional agencies for personal influence. People to whom institutional agencies could be of service fight shy of them. Anything that establishes two planes in the church bars from it those most in need of the church. Christian fellowship must be universal in the church that would measure up to its opportunities. John, the banker, and Jim, the bricklayer, have only one God, and must have the same standing in His church.

The congregations of these three churches, bound together in unity, co-operating in harmony, ably financed, aggressively Christian, might become a powerful influence in La Crosse. The suggestion shows vision and if there are no differences of denominational belief that can not be reconciled, the opportunity is here. But to win to that opportunity, if it exists, the course adopted must be one that has the sanction of the congregations with practical unanimity. The plan must be democratic, according the right of acceptance or rejection to every member.

The proposal, of course, is tentative. One doubts whether there is an individual in any one of the churches who could say with any certainty what the attitude of a majority of the congregation would be. The fullest possible publicity seems desirable, so that communicants can talk it over freely. It is true in all such cases that initiative is for the few, but the decision is for the many, and thus it is the many who must "thresh it out."

"LO, THE POOR INDIAN"

Figures recently issued by the Indian Bureau indicate better days for the Red Man. These report more Indians now in the country than at any previous time since the bureau was established. Their death rate has been reduced by a health campaign, and the birth rate is increasing. The race now owns $900,000,000 worth of property.

These figures look rather impressive, until one reflects that their wealth is in real estate handed down from the times when you bought land with wampum. However, the fact that the population is increasing shows that the Red Man is no longer pining his heart out in the country of the pale face. When he drops his war paint and feathers, and changes his name from "Peter the Bull that Lies Down" to Peter Bulldown, a metamorphosis has taken place.

The greatest obstacle in the way of the Indian's advance has been his hereditary indolence. He came by it honestly from his forefathers. Many white men feel the same way. A man of high intellectual gifts once remarked that he would rather suffer severe pain than work. You find that type in the purest Caucasian blood, and at both ends of the social scale—in the remote back country and in the socially elect of Newport and Bar Harbor.

People who are attracted to the Indian temperament speak of his qualities as a poet and a dreamer. These traits have never been popular in this country. The American people believe that poets should saw wood. However, the Indian has had two qualities that are much admired among us. These are courage and endurance. The Red Man was never charged with being devoid of those traits.

THE SUPREME AUTHORITY

Andrew Furuseth probably is the greatest United States authority on shipping. He will discuss the La Follette Seamen's act here Friday evening.

This act is one of the most important pieces of recent legislation. The shipping interests have made tremendous efforts to secure its repeal, and today are still bending every effort to that end. The law has been the subject of extensive discussion, involving facts, misunderstanding and misrepresentations. Almost every citizen is lined up for or against the measure, but with very few exceptions their ideas about it are not free from misconception.

The coming of Mr. Furuseth will be deemed important by every individual who desires to give this important legislation a fair hearing.

During a lesson in elementary composition, a little girl read the following as her effort:

"A nickel and a quarter met in a man's pocket. The quarter turned up its nose at the nickel and said scornfully, 'Why, I'm worth five times as much as you.'"

"Yes," said the nickel, "but even at that I am a good bit better than you are. I go every Sunday to church and you never do."

Good Business

Mr. Simpson took his wife's umbrella to the repair shop and then went to a restaurant for lunch. His mind being on umbrellas, he picked up one belonging to a lady next to him and was just leaving with it when the owner seized it and spoke her mind plainly, to the amusement of the onlookers. Going home that night, Simpson found himself opposite that same woman in the trolley and with the repaired and his own umbrella in his hand. She recognized him and remarked: "You've had a pretty good day."

Tact

It was the war of 1990, and the amazons were ranged in battle. The lady colonel was rallying her troops, among whom panic seemed likely to spread.

"Women," she cried, waving her parasol, "will you give way to manly fears?"

For a moment they pulled themselves together, yet hesitated to advance. Then their leader made one last effort:

"Women, listen! Are you going to show the white feather in a season when feathers are not being worn?"

The appeal was successful. "Never!" cried the amazons, as they dashed forward to meet the enemy.

SAUGATUCK

This bit of a town on the shore of Lake Michigan belongs to that immense family of little summer resorts, which is scattered all over the mountains, coasts and lake shores of the United States. Known only to a few regular patrons, these places are preferred by persons of simple tastes to the great and famous resorts of noise and money.

Saugatuck, for example, can not possibly be considered famous; yet it supports two hotels that together are about as large as all the rest of the town. Every summer they are filled, too, for there is good bathing and fishing in the lake, and with its background of wooded hills, and a little river winding down to the lake, Saugatuck is one of the most attractive bits of lake shore in the state.

Saugatuck has a unique possession in the shape of a fine natural amphitheater in the hills where plays and religious services may be held. Early on this account, it became popular with religious organizations—choirs, Y. M. C. A.'s, and Sunday schools, which made the sand dunes resound to the stately measures of their hymns. In later years, Saugatuck has been discovered by a large number of Chicago artists, and an art school is held there every summer. These wielders of the brush and palette-knife have now become the most striking and peculiar note of the landscape. Artists of all sizes and shapes are to be seen trotting up and down the lake shore, often wearing flowing smocks over bathing suits, or absorbedly painting knee-deep in the lake, their faces splattered with paint as a result of frenzied efforts to fend off the pestering flies. In moments of relaxation, these artists are even more striking to see; for they are wont to hold balls on the beach in their bathing suits, and enact dramas in the amphitheater clad in costumes beyond the dreams of ordinary folk. It's a good deal of a shock to some of the native Saugatuckians. But then, when you are in the summer resort business you have to get used to lots of things.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat. Go to City Book and Drug Store, 500 Main street, Columbus Pharmacy, 123 South Fourth street, and get a box of Oil of Korein capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for reducing moving superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely safe, and it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

She ran lightly up the steps and waved the flower to him, gaily. He smiled and watched her until she disappeared in the house. His eyes softened, his strong mouth twitched and standing erect, head up, he raised his hat, a loyal subject saluting his queen.

In the hall, Nelly found the assembled family anxiously awaiting the appearance of Miss Varney. Van Tuyl had a petition of some kind in his hand, spread out on a magazine, which he was urging Maude to sign.

"Maude," he argued, "it can't be that you do not approve of husbands in the abstract."

"Maybe she prefers them in the concrete," suggested Mrs. Von Loben Sels, sitting in a high backed, quaintly carved chair, Stephen Mayhew, Junior, in her lap, his short, fat little legs bare from knee to ankle. Her head was gracefully bent and her cheek rested tenderly on the small boy's yellow hair.

"In concrete," growled Tommy, who was making a few last feeble spurts of independence before he became hopelessly crushed.

"I consider that a sacrilege," declared Maude, motioning the paper aside. "A parody on the beautiful, tender Mother's Day, the most sublime day in the year, the day when all of us turn in thought and public honor to the one who has reared us."

"Not nowadays," returned Van Tuyl briskly. "Mothers disappeared entirely when women became economically independent."

Cally Brown burst into tears. As usual every one had forgotten her and the sudden sounds surprised them all, as much by recalling the mere presence of Cally as by the apparent grief she was suffering.

"Why, Cally," cried Mrs. Morgan, "what is it?"

"I can't help it," sobbed Cally. "You don't know how tired I get, working in an office all day. It's so small and cramped and hot and dirty."

"But Cally," cried Maude, "think of living off of a man."

"Horrible," declared Appleby. "Why not insist upon the man living off of you?"

"I know," sobbed Cally, unheeding Appleby's suggestion. "I must. I want to be economically independent, but I get to thinking—I know it's wrong in me, Maude, but I can't help it—thinking how can I be any less womanly for me to dust my husband's bureau than to dust my employer's desk."

"Cally, Cally," chided Maude. "Would you give up the breadth of the outer world for the narrow confines of the home?"

"But I don't see any—any breadth in the narrow office, typing the same 'follow-up' letter every day," wailed Cally.

The harassed family stood in a semi-circle and strove in vain to think of something comforting to say, but Maude alone found words to cheer the discouraged comrade onward to the goal of complete manhood. As a housewife, Cally was first-class, as an office employee she was decidedly third-class and would never be any better.

"Think of the birds," soothed Maude.

"But it seems so hopeless," sobbed Cally. "All my life nothing but a typist, because all my life, I have to be economically independent, and I haven't a business head; I can't seem to get along. I hate it so. I don't like business."

"I should suggest," said Appleby gently, "that Cally think of her child instead of the birds."

"Why think of birds?" asked Stephen Mayhew, gazing fondly at the pretty picture Mrs. Von Loben Sels made in the quaint old chair with her little son cuddled in her arms.

Maude was distressed at such ignorance. "We must do exactly as the birds do. They are the highest form of life."

"Great heavens, Maude, lay eggs?" gasped Mrs. Morgan, who had failed to keep abreast of the feminist literature of the day.

Van Tuyl created a diversion by hastily presenting his paper to Nelly, and talking very loud, while all the others crowded gratefully around him and Cally sobbed on, seated in lonely feminism on the bottom step of the stairs.

"Now, Nelly, as a married woman, you will feel, I know, a very great pleasure in signing this petition to Congress to pass a bill instituting 'Husband's Day.'"

"Husband's Day?" questioned Nelly.

"Certainly," said Van Tuyl. "Husband's Day, why not? Who doesn't want a day when we can think of the heroism of it, a young happy man, care-free, untrampled, his own master, deliberately sacrificing all that makes life sweet—er—er—Husbands, you know are the backbone of the race. Without husbands, as you can see, there would be no race. Now, surely, you feel that there should be some public recognition of this self-sacrificing heroism."

"Self-sacrificing to marry me?" demanded Mrs. Allison Drake Fisher Parker.

"Self-sacrificing, on whose part?" sternly from Mrs. Morgan.

"If anybody ever sacrificed herself," sniffed Mrs. Bingham, "to make a man happy, it was I."

"Ladies, ladies," soothed Appleby, "it is merely a flight of rhetoric on Freddy's part to get his petition favorably acted upon."

"Yes," agreed Nelly, "I think

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

Charlotte Walker, the famous stage star, will soon be seen in a five-reeler entitled "Sloth." She does not appear in either the first reel or the fifth reel of this five-reel film, but when she does appear, she portrays three historic characters. The second reel shows her depicting Margaret Brent, the beautiful, passionate, high-bred girl, who became Lord Baltimore's official representative in the early settlement days of Maryland, and whose advocacy of the vote won for her the title "First Feminist of America."

In the third reel Miss Walker assumes the role of Sally Wells, a little sixteen-year-old maid of an old Dutch settlement on Staten Island, who braved the perils of the wilderness practically alone, to build a home on her father's grant of land far up on the Hudson river.

The fourth reel shows the star in the part of Molly Pitcher, the dearest hoyden in American history, who followed her husband into the thick of Revolutionary warfare, and turned the tide of victory toward the continental army in the battle of Monmouth.

Notwithstanding these historic scenes, "Sloth" has a modern setting. A young girl is asked by her soldier-lover to choose between her life of luxurious indolence, and a life in which pioneer courage is required. Miss Walker steps from the past in her quaint characters to influence the girl to choose the heroic way by showing her the heritage of bravery and devotion to country that has come down to inspire American women of today.

"Sloth" emphasizes the dangers of indolence in our national life; the peril of permitting luxury to usurp the place of the simplicity of our forefathers. The introduction of this theme connects the series. Seven deadly sins with the national side of life in a vivid and stirring way that will charm the beholder.

Margaret Shelby and her sister, Mary Miles Minter, have established a hotel for stray dogs on the spacious grounds surrounding their Santa Barbara home. And somehow all the tramp canines of Santa Barbara and vicinity seem to have received wireless information of the fact. It is the dutiful mission of both girls to find there ought to be a Husband's Day."

"Ah, then sign here," Van Tuyl, forbearing to answer irrelevant remarks, presented the paper and his fountain pen to the other, and Nelly signed. "Thank you. Now you are one of us and you must wear our flower, the emblem of the day."

He put the magazine and paper on the hat-rack and from a small table picked up a vase filled with drooping crimson flowers on tall slender stalks. "I had these raised especially in a greenhouse, forced for this great day. Every one who believes in Husband's Day wears one and is proud to do so."

"What are they?" asked Nelly, taking the flower Van Tuyl handed her and pinning it on her breast beside the single perfect peony Reuben had given her.

"The symbol of the day," said Van Tuyl, drawing back. "What could be more appropriate for Husband's Day than that flower, our emblem, the bleeding heart!"

He glanced up and saw Miss Varney coming down stairs. Immediately there was a rush as all rose and hastened forward to inquire about Great-aunt Appleby.

"What shall I do if she comes down today and Harold not here?" demanded Mrs. Allison Drake Fisher Parker in an agitated aside to Appleby.

"Telegraph Fisher to bring him," suggested Appleby.

"I will," declared Mrs. Parker, "but pray God, aunt does not come down today."

EPISCOPALIANS AFTER CHAPEL

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—To provide a chapel for Episcopal students at the University of Wisconsin, a campaign has been undertaken to raise $250,000 among Episcopal churches in Wisconsin. In addition to a student church there also is to be a guild hall and rectory, and a dormitory which will probably be suitable homes for unsuitable dogs. On the morning after the accomplishment of such a purpose they are usually greeted upon visiting the dog hostelry in the back yard by the returned animal for whom they had just found a home.

In the Thanhouser production, "Divorce and the Daughter," Eugene Walter, the playwright, whose wife, Charlotte Walker, is a Thanhouser star, just for the fun of it donned some false whiskers and appeared in a scene with one hundred extras. You'll know him by the whiskers.

It's safe to say that Jane Gail, appearing in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," is the only actress who ever had a cave named after her. One of the sights of Nassau, Bahama islands, is "Jane Gail's cave," where many of the scenes with the castaways were taken.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmitin (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it 4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day. Parmitin is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 20.—After an all night search through the woods of the estate of John D. Rockefeller during which one of the six convicts who escaped from Sing Sing Friday was shot and wounded, five of the prisoners had been rounded up and captured before noon Friday.

"Ike" Curtis, who led the escape by impersonating a guard aboard the truck, was shot through the abdomen, perhaps fatally and captured. Scarcely had Rockefeller given his permission for the prison guards to hunt over his estate when the posse saw Curtis. In whipping out his gun, Curtis caught it in his shirt and as he struggled to release it, the possible rifles cracked and Curtis crumpled, shot through the abdomen.

Taking advantage of the heavy rain the six men, four concealed themselves in a big tool chest on the truck, one in prison uniform on the driver's seat, and Curtis, the sixth, clad in a long raincoat and wearing a guard's gray cap, rode past the guard and through the southern gate.

A Letter from Mr. Wm. Arendshorst, General Manager of the Holland Rusk Co., to the Users of HOLLAND RUSK:

Owing to the extraordinary rise in prices on all materials entering into the making of Holland Rusk, the Holland Rusk Co. was confronted with two alternatives: to lower the quality of Holland Rusk, or to raise the price.

During all the years we have been in business we have prided ourselves on the high quality of Holland Rusk. We have led buyers of Holland Rusk to expect that richness and delicacy of taste that comes only from the use of fresh and highest-grade ingredients. We have set a standard we do not wish to lower.

We could use cheaper materials or substitutes, but the result would not be the Holland Rusk you are accustomed to.

We believe the users of Holland Rusk would rather pay a slight increase than have us sacrifice the quality. We have, therefore, decided to maintain the quality and raise the price.

Until further notice the price of Holland Rusk will be thirteen cents per package, or two packages for a quarter.

The same high cost of raw materials also affects the making of Windmill Cookies.

Here, too, we will maintain the high quality and raise the price to thirteen cents per package or two for a quarter.

POINTS PARALLEL OF CIVIL WAR AND EUROPE'S STRUGGLE

L. C. Colman Is Chosen Curator by the Wisconsin Historical Society at Madison

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—"The present war more nearly than any other presents a parallel situation to that of the civil war," said Captain Arthur L. Conger, in an address before the Wisconsin Historical society meeting here last evening. Captain Conger is an instructor in the army service schools at Fort Leavenworth. The subject of his address was "President Lincoln as a War Statesman."

Captain Conger in comparing the present war with the world war in Europe, said that on the side of the allies, we have seen the attempt throughout, but with ever increasing effectiveness, to blockade and cut off economically the central powers from the rest of the world. The attempt to open the Dardanelles, to give Russia an economic outlet, and cut Turkey in twain, corresponds to the attempt to open the Mississippi and thereby restore the river trade route to the northwest. The affairs in the Balkans find their counterpart in the operations in Tennessee and Kentucky.

Speaking more directly of President Lincoln, Captain Conger styled him a statesman of consummate ability. Captain Conger holds contrary to the common opinion that it was President Lincoln, rather than any of his southern opponents who determined when the war should begin.

W. K. Coffin, Eau Claire, was elected president of the society for the coming year. He succeeds Judge Emil Baensch, Manitowoc. The five vice presidents elected were: John Luchinger, Monroe; S. G. Messmer, Milwaukee; William J. Starr, Eau Claire; Benjamin F. McMillan, Madison; and Judge John B. Winslow, Madison. L. S. Hanks, Madison, who has served the organization as treasurer for the past twenty years, was re-elected to this post.

Twelve curators were chosen for a term of three years as follows: W. K. Coffin, Eau Claire; Dr. Carl R. Fish, W. A. P. Morris, Judge R. G. Siebecker, Madison; Lucius C. Colman, La Crosse; Benjamin F. McMillan, Madison; Samuel M. Pedrick, Ripon; William J. Starr, Eau Claire; H. R. Holland, Ephraim; L. S. Frank, Milwaukee; E. P. Pierce, Trempealeau; and M. B. Dudgeon, Madison.

GAIN CLAIMED BY SERBIANS DENIED BY GERMAN OFFICE

Serbs Reported Continuing the Drive on Monastir and Taking Village of Velestelo

BUCHAREST CLAIMS GAINS

Counter Offensive of Rumanians Carries Victories Against Teutons, Is the Claim

LONDON, Oct. 20.—In the face of stubborn Bulgarian resistance, Serbian troops have pushed two miles northward in their advance on the Bulgarian base at Monastir, occupying the village of Velestelo, it was officially announced Friday.

The forty-fourth and twenty-eighth Bulgarian regiments, the official Serbian statement declares, have been defeated and four machine guns, three field guns and eighty prisoners taken.

The Serbian claims of further successes are flatly contradicted by the German war office Friday afternoon. The Berlin official statement admitted that the Serbs had made some gains but declared the new Serbian offensive in the bend of the river Cerna has been checked.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 20.—The Rumanian counter offensive has won further victories against the Teutons, it was officially announced Friday afternoon. In Oltuz valley the enemy has been driven back to the frontier. Montouru has been captured by Rumanians.

DECLARES FOOTBALL IS BIG FACTOR IN SPIRITUAL UPBUILD

ST. LOUIS Mo., Oct. 20.—Football may be considered a factor in spiritual development, Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, asserted in an address on religious education in a joint session of the house of bishops and the house of deputies at the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church Friday at Moolah temple.

Bishop Lawrence was one of the speakers in a discussion on religious education. "Anything that tends to develop character is a part of Christian education," he asserted. "Football, a friend of mine was fond of asserting, was the best religious instruction because it developed self control on the playground."

FLOUR NEARLY DOUBLES PRICE IN SIX MONTHS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—Gaining fifteen cents a barrel since Thursday, flour sold on the local exchange Friday at $9.25 and $9.40, which is almost double the wholesale price of six months ago. In three days a gain of fifty-five cents on firsts has been registered. With wheat selling at $1.82 1/2 on the Minneapolis exchange higher flour prices are expected.

Despite the raises, J. P. Regan, baker, said no advance would be made in the price of bread in Minneapolis. Scattering orders were found for flour at the high mark. Bakers' grade sold again today for $8.50, with seconds at $9.00 drawing few orders.

MUWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20.—Flour jumped to $11 a barrel retail in Milwaukee Friday shortly after the posting of figures showing that December wheat had gone over $1.70 a bushel. There was no change in wholesale prices. Retail grocers said they could not sell for less. The increase ranges from ten to fifteen cents a barrel.

The message sent out to democratic headquarters, east and west. The president on Friday again greeted Ohio and Pennsylvania crowds. He was to reach Shadow Lane Friday night. Saturday he celebrates "Farmers' day" at the summer white house and delivers a strictly political speech from the veranda.

Great Reception at Pittsburgh. PULLING INTO Pittsburgh before starting out on the last lap of his trip back to Shadow Lane, the president received a great reception from the residence of the Smoky City Friday. He was met at the train by a tremendous crowd and his route up town was marked by continuous demonstrations.

Trend for Wilson Says Bryan. The trend is to Wilson and it is trending fast. Wilson will have the women's vote. The strongest democratic issue is Mexico. These are the views of a campaigner of some experience—William Jennings Bryan, who met Wilson here for the first time in months.

Germans Drive Fiercely Against Saily-Saillizel Village, Taken By French

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES ADVANCING ON BAPAUME, Oct. 20.—Since Wednesday night the Germans have been making terrific counter attacks against the village of Saily-Saillizel, conquered by the French in a brief, violent battle a few hours before.

The very fury of the German counter attacks is evidence of the importance they attribute to the position. By their victory at Saily-Saillizel the French removed one of the strongest German positions defending the southeast approach at Bapaume, which German prisoners had boasted was untakable. At the same time they increased the allied breach in the German lines to a maximum depth of more than eleven miles and extended the French possession of the Peronne-Bapaume road to four and one-half miles.

The German began counter attacking Tuesday night to recover that part of the village taken by the French Sunday. They swept forward three times only to be beaten back.

Approaching Saily early Wednesday we encountered French wounded, returning from successful resistance to those counter attacks. Those able to walk followed the sign boards marking the paths toward the dressing stations at the rear. Curiously only those most slightly wounded sought rides aboard the returning caissons while those more severely wounded with mangled, swollen arms showing through bloody bandages, seemingly preferred walking. All the wounded were smoking cigarettes.

We finally reached artillery posts near Combies from which the French attack, launched at 11:45 was plainly visible. As the troops dashed up the hill, rockets were set off for the purpose of directing the barrage fire with French artillery screened their advance. Aeroplanes flew overhead also, signalling to the rear as each objective was attained. While we watched one of these planes was forced to descend, but succeeded in alighting safely within range of the French advance.

Within a quarter of an hour the French had completed the conquest of the village. Then other groups of soldiers were visible passing grenades, machine gun belts and munitions necessary to enable their comrades to hold the village.

The quick capture of Saily is an example of the present power and dash of the French infantry. After attaining their prescribed objectives, the French push onward, capturing the dominating heights to the northeast.

BIG STORE FAMILY HAS ITS ANNUAL EMPLOYEES PARTY

"Billy Dee" Entertains with a Real Old-fashioned Punch and Judy Show

The spirit of good fellowship permeated the air Thursday night when the Wm. Doerrlinger Co. E. M. B. association entertained its members at a six o'clock "feed" and entertainment. Viennese and "things" floated around in abundance to the entire satisfaction of everyone—even Archie Downey.

After everyone was filled up with "grub", President Dusty took charge of the meeting, and the big noise began. Mr. John Haeblich opened the program with a novel solo, combining the violin with the voice in a most unusual way. He was called to the stage for an encore.

Miss E. Fuller continued the program with a series of very excellent piano solos.

The Famous Trio. One of the comedy hits of the evening was the Musical Trio from "Hell's Half Acre", composed of Mr. Gus B. Rose, violin; Mr. S. F. Fellows, piano, and Mr. S. Locke, drums. Mr. Dusty, in an explanatory talk said that Mr. Doerrlinger was responsible for the appearance of these noted artists. Mr. Rose, it was found, had served many seasons in the Thomas orchestra, while Mr. Fellows and Mr. Locke were imported from like organizations of renown. The act was a scream. The artists each received a beautiful floral basket as a tribute. The predominating flowers were lemons. It was evident the act was not supposed to be a musical triumph. It was a burlesque, and some burlesque: "Sweet Bunch of Daisies," "Down by the Old Mill Stream" and the "Glowworm" were murdered to perfection.

The real act on the bill was presented by "Billy Dee". He presented a real Punch and Judy show. He had a real plot, with King, Fair Maiden, and "Bold Robber", who cruelly murders Papa King and eloped with fair daughter. It is apparent "Billy Dee" has missed his vocation.

Then came the "Lost Chord Quartet", composed of Marshall Cohen, Carl Burghardt, Oscar Wastal and Arthur Weimer. These boys were entirely out of place; they belong in better company, for it has been some time since such a combination of harmony was heard outside of the Orpheum. The boys responded to encores until they had no more to sing. The best part of it is—they don't belong in the store, they volunteered their services.

Mrs. Fellows, Mrs. Locke and Mr. Locke were the next entertainers, with a remarkable Hawaiian trio, in which ukuleles and the piano blended in beautiful effects. Marshall Cohen followed with one of those "way-down-at-the-bottom-of-the-sea" solos, reaching bottom and staying under a long time to the great delight of the banqueters.

The grand wind-up of the "get-together" which was attended and participated in by employees, managers and stockholders on an equal footing, was a verbal satire fired off by President Dusty, in which everybody came in for good-natured abuse which they greatly relished.

RESCUED FROM SAND PIT

MONROE, Wis., Oct. 20.—When Gust Horder failed to come home for lunch his wife sent one of the children out looking for him. Gust was found buried in a gravel pit with his head just protruding above the gravel. The sides of the pit collapsed while Horder was working in it. One rib was broken and a hip dislocated.

Director of Mint Declares Great Prosperity Is Responsible for High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—"America's great prosperity is in itself responsible for the high cost of living," director of the Mint Von Engelken held Thursday.

With more gold in its vaults, more money circulated, and the greatest export trade in history, the United States, he said, is at once reaping a golden harvest—and, to mix the metaphor—paying the piper, the piper being the high cost of living.

His explanation was: "Export trade brings an unprecedented quantity of gold here. There is such a vast demand for goods that prices rise responsively. More workers than ever before are employed and they are getting larger wages than previously. And while these workers supply the goods, their wages drawn from the immense store of gold, buy more goods than before, thus helping swell the abnormal demand and the consequent price increase.

Wages, he admits, have not fully kept pace with prices—as usual—but he hopes for an altered condition in the future.

H. C. of L. of Own Creation
"The high cost of living," he said, "is a creature of our own creation. The United States is normally a borrowing nation. Capital utilized for construction in the past has been recruited largely abroad. Our economic affairs consequently have been adjusted to meet the customary outflow of money required to pay our interest bills in foreign countries.

"The sudden reversal of this condition, the retention of interest payments at home, coupled with a reversal of the usual trade conditions, presents an unusual and extraordinary economic problem. For the present we are reaping a golden harvest and are spending it in our turn with a prodigal hand.

"It is to be hoped we will not become so accustomed to the present ability to supply our various personal demands that we will find it difficult to readjust ourselves to the more normal state of affairs that will confront us, we hope in the very near future."

Mints Overworked
Mints are working twenty-four hours a day trying to keep up with the demands for coins. In the last two years $700,000,000 in gold over the usual importations has poured in to the United States. Figures showing the following relative demand for coins for the periods from January 1 to October 17 last year and this year were:

Dimes—	1915 .....	$ 658,000
1916 .....	2,200,000
Nickels—	1915 .....	$1,100,000
1916 .....	2,950,000
Pennies—	1915 .....	$ 266,000
1916 .....	1,098,000

Verse and Reverse

MY HOUSE
How blue the moonlight and how still the night
Silent I saunter through the whole dear house
Setting afloat in happy ownership
Whatever may be out of its due place
Books in the living room I rearrange
Then in the dining room my pewter mugs
And put her little brown nasturtium bowl
Where she can see it when she telephones
Up in my den the papers are a sprawl
And litter up my desk; those too I sort Thinking, "I never will do this again
And do my work neglected. . . . Tiptoe then I pass into the Shrine. She is asleep
Dark hair across the moon blanched pillow slip
Her eyes are sealed with peace, but as I touch
The girlish cheek, her lips are tremulous
With secret knowing smiles. In her boudoir (Her "sulking room" I call it; did you know
It means that) I wind up the tiny clock
And stand at her Prayer Window
Lie listening to the crickets and the stars
Alas, I only hear the throb of pain
That echoes from the moonlit fields of France.

Into our kitchen, too, I love to go
Straighten the spoons against our break of fast
Share secrets with our dog, the drowsy-eyed Surprise the kitten with some midnight milk
The pantry cupboard, full of pleasant things
Attracts me; there I love to place in line
The packages of cereals, or fill up
The breakfast sugar bowl; and empty out
The lexicon pan into the singing night
Then, as I fixed the cushions on the porch
I wondered whether God, while wandering
Through his big house the world, householderwise
Does also quietly set things right.
Gives sleep to sleepless wives in Germany
And gently smooths the battlefields of France?
Dear Father God, the children in their play
Have lost their toys in saddest dismay—
Will thou not, like a kindly nurse at night
Pass through the playroom, make it neat again?

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, headache, dizziness, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

ALLEGES DAIRY TRUST

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 20.—Congressman James Francis Burke on Thursday appealed to Attorney General Gregory at Washington to investigate the northern Ohio dairy men's organization. In a letter to the attorney general he alleged that "the Sherman anti-trust law is being violated in most flagrant manner by Ohio milk producers conspiring to boost the price of milk in western Pennsylvania."

TAXI-DRIVERS TO CELEBRATE THE VICTORY OF MARNE

Great Drive of Autos from Paris Which Saved the Capital to Be Remembered

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PARIS, Sept. 22.—(By Mail.)—Taxicab drivers of Paris will hereafter observe all future anniversaries of the Battle of the Marne by flying the tri-color of France from their mastheads—or rather, from the top of their machines.

The custom, inaugurated this year for the first time, in honor of the thousand odd drivers who, under the orders of General Gallieni, carried the re-enforcements to General Maunoury that made victory of the Marne a certainty, proved so popular that its permanent observance was at once decided upon.

This was rendered all the more advisable by the fact that of the thousand odd chauffeurs who participated in the memorable feat, only a few still remain in active service at Paris. Hundreds were later mobilized, others died, still others departed, till the number has become so reduced that the definite observance was decided upon to prevent memory of the accomplishment from dying out.

Are Decorated
The original thousand drivers were cited to the order of the day before the French armies for their deed, and this fact their successors for all time to come, will endeavor to keep before the public on all future anniversaries of the Battle of the Marne.

John Breten, one of the few of the original thousand, who still drives a taxi at Paris, has just given to the United Press the following interview of the memorable day, from the taxicab driver's point of view.

"It was a little after noon," says John, "that the police began stopping us, ordering us to dump our passengers forthwith, without the formality of collecting either the fare or the tip due us, and to report immediately to our depots. There we were to receive full supplies of petrol and instructions.

Little to Eat
"When the policeman stopped me, I had not eaten since my morning roll and coffee, but what did the policeman care about that, or about the fact that I was not to have a bit of anything to eat for another thirty-six hours with the exception of a biscuit that I wheedled out of a poor old woman at Lagny. And all in the meantime my blessed wife at home thinking sure I was dead, and the situation not being improved upon my return by my inability to tell her where I'd been for we all had to take an oath not to tell a soul what we had done or seen.

"They gave me ten soldiers for my first fare, three on the seat beside me and seven inside. And what a sad load. During the whole trip, through the dark, with a whole stream of taxi-cabs ahead of me, and another one behind, not a one of those soldiers ever offered me a word or a smile, or cracked a joke amongst themselves. But they were real men all right all right—grave, resolved, knowing fully what was going to be asked of them, but ready to risk and give all.

"I landed them where I had been ordered and hurried back to Paris with the rest of my pals for a fresh load. It was just the same as the first—not a word from any of them. Ah, that silence through the long hours of the night was terrible, and if I lived a hundred years I would never forget that ride, nor the appetite I had after eating only one biscuit in 48 hours, nor the beating I got from my good old wife when my oath prevented me telling her anything about it."

They say that every man is either a hammer or an anvil. He acts for himself, or he waits for something to be handed to him.

Your attention is being called to new clothes in all sorts of ways by all sorts of stores. Now's the time to strike for yourself—to be a hammer and not an anvil. Don't drift into some store in the hope that the right clothes will hit you. It's GOOD clothes you need, as well as new ones, to really "dress-up."

Pick out a good store—one featuring quality goods—one having a reputation for progressiveness, reliability and service. And if you come here, as we feel you should and hope you will, you'll find us just as interested as you in seeing that you get the right thing at the right price.

Hart, Schaffner and Marx and Our Own Hand-Tailored Suits and Overcoats at $20 to $35

You ought to pay at least $20 for your new suit or overcoat this fall. And if you're going to pay $20 or more, you won't find anything—anywhere—that will give you more service and satisfaction than a Hart, Schaffner & Marx. Take a look at these new models. Compare them in fabric, fashion, fit and finish with clothes offered elsewhere at several dollars more. And then—buy where you please.

Other Suits at $15 and $18

Made to our order, under our direction and to our specifications. If $15 or $18 is all you feel you can possibly pay, here's the place to pay it, for there's an extra $3 to $5 worth of good looks and good wear in these suits that you won't find in any others at the price.

declaring that a vote for me is a vote for war," Hughes asserted, "because I have criticised weakness and vacillation on the part of the administration. A vote for me is a permanent peace based on self-respect and the esteem and respect of others."

Hughes detailed at length the basis of what he termed the present temporary prosperity, declaring they who "seek to make political capital of our present prosperity are either insincere or thoughtless."

GREATEST TALK OF
CAMPAIGN PLEAS
LANSING AUDIENCE

LANSING, Iowa, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—In the best address that has been delivered in this part of the country in this presidential campaign, Honorable Lee Francis Lybarger scored remarks which have been directed against the Wilson administration. Unfortunately, a very small audience greeted the speaker.

Superintendent Carlson and his clerk class of the high school attended the talk. Many of the speaker's remarks were directed to the students who could not help but secure inestimable profit from the address.

Mr. Lybarger is a "reformed republican," as he expressed it. So much was the speaker impressed with the success of the Wilson administration, however, that following the close of the chautauqua season he offered his services to the national democratic committee. He spoke in Wisconsin before coming to Iowa.
From here he will invade Kansas and he will wind up in Indiana on the eve of the election.

Another Coming
Next Tuesday evening, October 24,
at 8 o'clock, at the Goodell hall, Hon.
Carl Evans, democratic candidate for congress from the Fourth Iowa district, will address the voters of Lansing and vicinity. Mr. Evans is one of the leading business men of West Union. He is making an active campaign and gaining votes wherever he goes. A large turnout is expected.

DECLARES HUMAN SERUM
CURED PLAGUE CASES

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Human serum assisted in affecting eleven cures in fifteen cases of infantile paralysis, according to the announcement of Dr. C. W. Wells, in the current issue of the American Medical Journal.

The serum, taken from former victims, was beneficial in most cases but by no means proved a positive cure, the article states. Injection in the veins gave better results than in the spinal cord.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT
REACHES LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Duke of Connaught, former governor general of Canada, the Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia, reached London Friday.

The Duke of Connaught's departure from Canada was kept secret for several days and the name of the vessel on which he sailed was not revealed, presumably because of the presence of the German submarine
U-53 in the Atlantic.

No man is modest enough to believe himself any worse than others.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine.
This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

No Talking Machine
Manufacturer Dares
to Make this Test

No talking machine manufacturer dares to invite a public comparison between a great artist's voice and the reproduction of that voice by a talking machine. No talking machine could sustain such a test.

The NEW EDISON

has been tested in this manner before two hundred thousand people. Great artists such as Marie Rappold, Anna Case, Alice Verlet, Christine Miller, Marie
Kaiser, Elizabeth Spencer, Helen Clark, Arthur Middleton, Thomas Chalmers, and numerous others, have matched their voices against Mr. Edison's Re-Creations thereof and two hundred thousand music lovers have confessed their inability to distinguish the real voices from Edison's Re-Creations of them.

Not a Talking Machine

The New Edison is not a talking machine. It does not re-produce music. It literally re-creates music. It is the world's most wonderful musical instrument.

Come to Our Store

We want to give you an Edison Musicales. There will be no obligation on your part. It will be a pleasure to us to demonstrate this wonderful new invention which Mr. Edison has licensed us to sell.

TEDDY HAS FIVE TO ANSWER BAKER

BY J. P. YODER

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 20.—Colonel Roosevelt expects to have a few words to say to Secretary Baker next Monday at Albuquerque apropos the war secretary's comparison of the Carranza revolution with the American revolution. He had previously planned to discuss only the Mexican situation in both his Phoenix and Albuquerque speeches.

The colonel spent all of Friday working on these two talks and on his addresses at Denver and Chicago which are the next objectives in his campaign for Hughes. At Denver he plans to discuss social justice and at Chicago he will take up in detail the economic issues which he believes are now important, especially those which he believes will appear "after the war and should have republican doctors to fix them up."

It was not until Friday that it became known the colonel had hung the Indian sign on Kansas City late Thursday afternoon. There was the usual crowd at the station. Although Roosevelt had insisted he would make no more platform talks, he sneaked out to say howdy and wave his hat. He noticed a score of Haskell Indians in the crowd and mysteriously held up two fingers, the sign of the Pawnee. There was no response. Next he drew his hand across his throat. It was the sign of the Sioux. Still no response. Then he

WHEAT PASSESS $1.70 AND $2 PRODUCT IS FREELY PREDICTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Wheat jumped over the $1.70 mark Friday and reached the highest figure since the civil war with the exception of the high level in the Leiter corner in 1898.

An hour after an opening at $1.69, December wheat sold at $1.71½ and May at $1.70½. Later there was a recession. Grain men freely predicted $2 wheat within a few weeks. Canadian wheat has been snowed under reports indicate, and may not get to market this season. Threshing has discontinued; the estimates already low, were reduced still more.

The previous high figure for May wheat was $1.67 reached in February, 1915, after the European war had held up Russian wheat from European markets. During the Leiter corner, May reached $1.85. During the civil war wheat reached $2.

ACTED PROLOGUE OPENS THE GREAT "CIVILIZATION"

Speaking Stage and Films Combined in Unique Offering Coming to La Crosse Theater

SIXTY-TWO IN COMPANY

Bgi Chorus Is But One of Hundreds of Effects Which Enhance Picture's Realism

The stage is set—at least the screen stage—for the introduction at the La Crosse theater Sunday of Thomas H. Ince's million dollar photoplay masterpiece, "Civilization." The four-day engagement will open with matinee Sunday afternoon, to be followed by performance in the evening. Matinee and evening performances will be given on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Billboards for miles in every direction about the city are displaying posters of the gigantic cinema production, and the La Crosse theater box office is already engaged in a hustling business with advance seat sales. The engagement of "Civilization" promises to outdo, in popularity, any photoplay entertainment, not excepting "The Birth of a Nation," ever shown in La Crosse.

It is by far the most daring attempt to picture the horrors of war ever shown on the screen. Ince has placed in the production his masterful knowledge of the art of motion photography. The cast consists of the best material obtainable, headed by the famous Howard Hickman, recent star of several Triangle successes, and Enid Markey, equally as well known. Those playing minor characters were carefully selected by Ince and C. Gardner Sullivan, author of the story. With Sullivan aiding him, and with the outlay of a million dollars, Ince spent one year in making the picture. The immensity of the spectacle may be realized to some small degree by the fact that in one scene five thousand women kneel before the throne of the king who wants to precipitate the nation in war.

A company of sixty-two people come to La Crosse with the film. Twenty-five persons engage in a prologue. This feature of "Civilization" stamps it beyond doubt, one of the most unique entertainments in the history of the American stage. Never before have the movies and the spoken stage been united. The actors with "Civilization" tell the opening chapter of the story. In a startling manner they fade from the stage and the photoplay is introduced.

BOLTON IS BACK FROM ARGUMENT OF COAL CASES

That coal rates to La Crosse are out of line with rates to points both south and north of the city was the theme of S. J. Bolton's argument before the interstate commerce commission at Washington. The traffic commissioner was back at his desk Friday, after nearly a week's trip to make the argument on the coal cases, which had been demanded by the railroads.

Kenneth F. Burgess, attorney for the Burlington road, argued for the carriers, Mr. Bolton said. His chief point was that since the commission had allowed the La Crosse coal rates to be established at the time of the five per cent general advance, it should leave them undisturbed.

WILSON'S WAITERS STRIKE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Thirty waiters "couldn't serve no such elaborate spread" for $1.00 at the Press club. "No matter if President Wilson is here." They struck just before luncheon and won. They received $1.50 each.

SAID HE WOULDN'T TALK

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Refusal to talk to her except when he is intoxicated was a charge made by Virginia F. Perdue, suing her husband for divorce.

Would Save Expense.

"Well, doctor, if I got to die, I die contented. My life insurance is ten thousand dollars." "I think with the aid of stimulants, I can keep you alive for a week longer." "Don't do it, doctor. Der breimium comes due der day after tomorrow."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Daily Thought.

Noble disappointment and noble self-denial are not to be admired, not even to be pardoned, if they bring bitterness. Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties.—R. L. S.

Wouldn't Care Anyway.

"I see where a judge has decided that to tickle a mule on the hind leg is contributory negligence." "I shouldn't think a man who did that would care by the time the decision was given what it was."

Surest Thing You Know.

The greatest bore upon this earth—the biggest nuisance known—is he who talks about himself and his small affairs alone, when you think he ought to listen while you talk about your own.

CHURCHES SELECT COMING SUNDAY AS DAY FOR ARMENIAN

Head of Church Federation Appeals to City to Give to Save Starving People

F. H. Scofield, president of the La Crosse Federation of Churches, on Friday issued an appeal to the people of La Crosse to contribute on Sunday to the Syrian and Armenian relief fund. The day has been set aside, through proclamation of President Wilson and the governors of all states, as a day on which contributions will be received for the aid of the stricken people of the orient.

President Scofield urges that contributions be made during the morning church services. Money can also be placed in the care of any La Crosse bank.

The churches have been asked to announce the special offering in their morning services. The expense of collecting and forwarding the fund is met by individual members of the American relief committee. Every dollar collected goes immediately to aid in the relief of the Syrians and Armenians.

NORMAL OUT FOR VICTORY ON DAY OF FIELD'S DEDICATION

Superior Plays Here Saturday in First Game of the Conference
Season

TEAM IS BADLY CRIPPLED

Grausnick Out for Good and Immell, Star Tackle, May Be Kept from the Game

The La Crosse normal football team is determined to win its first game on Normal field following official dedication of the gridiron on Saturday afternoon just preceding the struggle between Superior and La Crosse. Despite the fact that the local team is considerably crippled and little is known of the strength of the northerners, odds on the outcome of the encounter are favoring La Crosse's chances.

Many shifts have been made in the normal lineup during the course of the past week both because of injuries and for the reason some of the men are making sudden spurts. Grausnick's injury, which will keep him out of the game for the entire season, causes a big shift in the backfield. It is probable that the rest of the backfield will be left intact. "Shorty" Dean will begin the game at one half and "Shorty" Grounds at the other with Captain Miller at full and Roellig at quarter. This combination may be shifted, however, following the last practice. It is not known whether Immell, star tackle, will be able to begin the game Saturday because of a strain on the muscles of his back. Huber, the big boy who stopped Dubuque last Saturday on the two yard line after he had been substituted in an emergency, will find a regular berth this week and likewise McCormick, Soldiers Grove track team, who has been showing up to advantage since last week's tussle. Baker, Meinert, Kulczynski and Benjamin will be at their regular positions.

Saturday's contest will be the first conference game of the year for the normal. The teams of Stevens Point and River Falls will also clash Saturday for the first conference game in the northern section for these aggregations.

HOLD SECRET PRACTICE

Work Behind Closed Doors in

Period of Work-outs

A dull, drizzly morning greeted high school football warriors Friday as they woke on the morn of their fray with Chippewa Falls on the athletic field of the normal school.

But the character of the weather was not reflected in the spirit of Bell's warriors, who are out to repeat their victory of last year at Chippewa Falls. They saw it was necessary to defeat the Falls to keep a clear view of the state title and they were out for blood, but no more than the men from the north, who were to arrive in La Crosse at noon from Sparta, where they on Thursday went through a stiff practice with the Sparta team.

Every measure was taken during the forenoon and early afternoon to put the field into as good shape as possible. Mrs. Ritter of the city park commission, who has charge of the field, had men working with rollers during the day filling in sog holes and driving some of the water from the field.

Secret practice was gone through by the Red and Black in Hixon gymnasium at the finishing touch to a hard round of preparation for the Falls men.

TIMME BUYS CUBAN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20.—President Timme of the Milwaukee American Association Baseball club, took his first step Thursday toward building up a new club for next year with the announcement that he has signed Pedro Dibut, said to have been a star in the Cuban league this year. Dibut is 20 and is a right hand twirler. Timme's reports say that Dibut has averaged three swats per game this season. Brooklyn was also after Dibut, said Timme.

ABUSE DENTAL CLINIC

JANESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 20.—Because they feel that the free dental clinics conducted by the civic league in the city hall, with a small appropriation from the city, were abused by parents who were able to pay for treatment of their children, the city commissioners have refused to accept the proposition of the civic league that take entire charge of the work this year.

SECRET PRACTICE OF REAL SECRECY GIVEN BADGERS

None Admitted to Field During Two Weeks of Work Before the Chicago
Game

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—It will take a regular "sloofoot" detective who has a good disguise of the shape and proportions of a flea to find out just what Dr. Paul Withington is doing with the University of Wisconsin football squad this week.

For four weeks the Badger coach has had secret practice, but members of the press, old grads, and members of the athletic council were all permitted within the canvas wall that surrounds the playing field of Camp Randall. This week it is different. Not a single person who is not working on or with the team is allowed on the Badger grounds in this, the beginning of the two weeks of "fierce" work that has been laid out for the team before the Chicago battle a week from Saturday.

A pass key to the gates of the varsity camping ground will be of no avail should any one wish to see the workouts. The grounds are full of armed pickets doing sentinel duty throughout the course of the afternoon's workout. The whistles and cries of the warriors at work behind the trenches, however, indicated on Wednesday that the regular scrimmage, with some variations, was going on.

But one fact remains from all these signs. That is that Dr. Withington and his assistants are going to have taught the Badgers their game by the Chicago contest or die after slaughtering their men in the attempt. The coaches are evidently not satisfied with the results that have been shown thus far, and are taking extraordinary means of meeting the work out to the men so that they will really learn what they are being taught.

Friday was spent getting the squad in final shape for the battle with the Haskell Indians Saturday.

"What do you know about that—a MILD
cigarette that satisfies!"

Chesterfields have done "the impossible"—they satisfy and yet they are not strong. They are MILD! Chesterfields do for your smoking what bacon and eggs do for your breakfast—they satisfy.

And yet Chesterfields are MILD—that's the point.

No other cigarette can give you this new enjoyment (satisfy yet mild) because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend.

This blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos and is undoubtedly the most important new thing in cigarette making in 20 years.

SINGING COMEDIANS HEAD OF FAREWELL VAUDEVILLE BILL

Some of the best western vaudeville talent has been summoned for the closing half week of varieties at La Crosse. Headed by Coghlan, Avery and Otto, styled in stage pattern "emperors of vocal comedy," and Cross and Doris, in a more than unusual singing and talking act, the bill opened to pleased audiences
Thursday. It will close Saturday night.

Coghlan and his partners are funny down to the core. They have a delightful knack of satisfying anybody who looks to them to supply pure fun. Cross and Doris are clever singers. Their line of humor goes over in first class order from the time they first appear until they are allowed to leave the stage.

DEMOCRACY OF THE MOVIES REASON FOR SUCCESS, SAYS FOX

BY GEORGE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Whether you have ten cents or ten million, "you're only a dime" to the movie theater. The movies are democratic, the spoken drama playhouses aristocratic, so Mr. Common People goes to the movies.

At least such is the belief of William Fox, the latest movie producer to take his place among the makers of "million dollar films."

"All we know is that the movie fan wants us to play upon his heart strings, but the general result, so far, has been horrible discord. With all the millions and millions that have been poured into the industry we have only scratched the surface of the film's possibilities. If we ever strike the keynote of genuine heart interest the world will go movie mad and stay so," said Fox.

"The only big factor favoring the producer of big films is that he has the public pre-disposed in his favor. Most of the movies success so far has been, thanks to its democracy, not to its pictures, the vast majority of which have been mawkish to the point of being sickening. This has been partly due to faulty direction and partly to the fact that the demand of the movie fan has been for something to make his blood boil, rather than the heart interest blended with the beautiful and the artistic.

"Promoters of the spoken drama complain that we have hurt them. They say we have taken their gallery crowds from them, but there are more theaters in New York than ever before because the movies have educated and sit anywhere you want to—maybe next to the man worth ten million."

A man is likely to save his religion and best suit of clothing for the Sabbath.

Bail was fixed at $2,000 apiece. The penalty for the abduction charge on which they are held is from one to fifteen years.

Tells women how to dry clean everything with gasoline and save $5.

It is very easy and inexpensive to dry clean and brighten all the ribbons, laces, yokes, neckties, silks, net work, satins, shirtwaists, kid gloves and shoes, furs, children's clothes, suits, caps, furled garments, fancy vests, Swiss, lawn, organdie and chiffon dresses, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drugist and put it in two gallons of gasoline, where it immediately dissolves. Then immerse the goods to be cleaned; rub a little and out they come looking bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

These few moments' work saves any household five to ten dollars. Try it and you will find dry cleaning just as easy as laundering. Your grocer or any garage will supply the gasoline and the drug store will furnish the solvite, which is simply a gasoline soap. Then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your home dry cleaning outfit.

Monster Elephant Butte Dam Makes Lake Forty Miles Long to Irrigate Desert Farms.

(By Frederic J. Haskin.)

UNCLE SAM formally announces the completion of the biggest reservoir in the world—a lake forty miles long, dammed back by a structure that makes the pyramids of Egypt look ineffectual and amateurish. Lava canyons that have been dry since the seventh day of Creation are drowned under sixty feet of cool green water. Little villages thirty miles from the scene of operations, villages that have been getting their water in barrels, are seriously considering whether they ought to invest in rowboats. An old deserted fort, up a side canyon that was long a synonym for utter dryness has become a fine place to fish. All these changes, and a few score of others much more important economically, have been brought about by the building of the Elephant Butte dam twelve miles from here. The reclamation service has been laboring away at the monster service for five years, undisputed by war, strikes or politics. The service built a railroad and a city as incidental details of construction. Now the work is done; most of the city has been torn down and hauled away; the railroad will soon travel the same path. The dam remains, and will remain for the next few hundred years. The more familiar you are with this part of the country, the more unbelievable seems the feat that has been accomplished. From the Black Range to the westward to the barren spurs of the White mountains to the east, lies one of the driest stretches of the southwest. It is a land of yucca, cactus and greasewood, of shallow, muddy water holes trampled into a brown soup by the hoofs of eager cattle, a land of rattlesnakes, prairie dogs and cawing crows. The old Mexican name for the eastern miles of the valley is La Jornada del Muerto—the journey of death. Now scores of the lava hills are turned into islands, long arms of the new sea wind back like the flocks of Norway into what were once barren gulches, and you could sail a steamer where cattle died of thirst. The country hereabouts is chiefly made up of rolling stony hills two or three hundred feet high, intersected by steep gullies. On this account the lake created by the new dam is not a single sheet of water as most artificial lakes are, but a winding thing of crooked narrow arms reaching up between the hills, like a great green octopus. The dry canyons have become parts of a big reservoir, and where the plainsman at this season would expect to find only a sun baked gulch between two hill crests there is forty feet of water. Indeed, an old timer who glimpsed one of these new desert floods as he crossed the valley would surely take it for a mirage and never turn aside to investigate. The huge gray dam itself is dwarfed by the gray hills around it. Cunningly placed so that its presence backs up the river waters and floods the canyons for a score of miles above, it seems nevertheless like nothing but a spur of the hills on either side, flung across the narrow valley between. You have to stand on its crest to appreciate the size of it. Shaped like a wedge with the narrow edge uppermost and the broad base buried beneath the waters and the sands of the river bed reaching deep into the bed rock below, there is easily room for two automobiles to pass between the two six foot parapets on the roadway that forms the top. From one end to the other it is a pleasant five minutes' walk, with a view to the northward that would startle the original inhabitants of New Mexico. On the upstream side the gauges show today a little more than a hundred feet of water. This upstream side of the masonry is perpendicular, dropping sheer another hundred feet or so to water level. The lake is a long way from being filled yet, and it will take the Rio Grande several years yet to complete its share of the contract. The waters are a clear green, contrary to the habit of Southwestern rivers, which are usually a rich chocolate. The heavy sediment brought down from above is deposited by the waters in staidly; eventually the disposition of this sediment will be another problem for the government engineers to solve. The result, however, is a lake almost as clear as a tropic ocean; from the height of the dam crest you can see schools of great carp and catfish, some of them two feet long, swimming about lazily twenty feet below the surface. Their size is something of a mystery, for the catfish native to the river is a modest individual rarely larger than six or eight inches, and no fish have been introduced. Evidently the natives have thrived in their new quarters. It is not possible to form an adequate idea of the dimensions of this man-made ocean from any point, because so much of the imprisoned water is backed up in invisible side canyons. From the dam itself you can hardly tell which way the course of the river lies. From the east, the west and the north stretch the deep narrow arms of water where the rising river has filled the tributary valleys as well as the main river bed. Elephant Butte, a sheer pile of brown lava in whose outlines the lively imagination can trace some faint resemblance to an elephant's head, has been turned into an island by the rising flood. Other isolated hills and hillocks, some of them miles above the dam, can be seen faintly in the clear air as though floating in the water that surrounds them. Far across the dry "mal pais" as the Mexicans call these "bad lands" you can see the site of Old Fort McRae, which an invisible arm of the reservoir has turned into a fishing ground. And for many miles that you cannot see at all you know that the same green tide has entered and flooded the canyons, here spreading out into a broad lake, there breaking up into winding arms, with the crests of the ridges left as peninsulas and islands. The flooding and filling part of the program is far from being completely carried out. It will take several years before the lake has attained its full magnitude. A mile from the main concrete dam there is a lesser dam built of earth and stone. It can stand for a very respectable piece of engineering on its own account. Its top is broad enough for an auto road, and it slopes fifty or sixty yards downward to its base—a slope that is faced smoothly as a table with broken stone well beaten down. This dam blocks a perfectly dry side canyon. There is not even any water in sight from its crest today. But when the big lake is full the side canyon will be flooded, and the water will have risen within twenty yards of the crest of this secondary dam. The main dam looks like a solid block of gray concrete, but as a matter of fact it is riddled with galleries and passages. You can climb down a shaft and explore its entrails, and here for the first time you appreciate the enormous size of this man-built thing. Endless passages stretch before you. Iron ladders lead upward and downward to other levels and similar passages. A sloping flight of narrow concrete steps dips downward for thirty feet, strikes a ten foot level landing, then dips downward again. This process is repeated over and over, until you begin to think that the stairs will go on to China. As you go deeper the walls become damp, and you are conscious of a change in the air pressure like that in the railway tunnels under the Hudson. You pass here and there little chambers hollowed out, where stand polished valves and gauges, winking in the electric lights. At the bottom you are a hundred feet or so below the water level a few feet to the northward. All that stands between you and the pressure of half a billion gallons of penned water is a bit of shrewdly calculated concrete masonry. The whole structure is faintly but incessantly shaken by a fine vibration, due to the rush of what water is permitted to flow through the penstocks to the turbine power plant. You can feel the vibration by laying a hand on the dam wall. It is comforting to reflect that the strain on the dam has been carefully calculated by men who know their business. On the downstream side, at the base, a passage leads outward to a little power house perched on the side of the concrete mountain, whose wall and roof are continually damped with spray flung up forty feet by waters that rush through the turbine. Here a fraction of the available power is utilized for local needs. Six great round passages, each large enough for a man to walk upright, pierce the dam by the power house. They are dry today, but eventually the waters released through them will furnish electric power to the water users for hundreds of miles below, perhaps to the city of El Paso itself. It is just as difficult to visualize the change that the dam will work below its side as it is to visualize the long lake that will eventually reach for forty-five miles about. The whole flow of the Rio Grande will be controlled from here, and the floods that storm down in the spring will be held and released as needed in the dry summer. Far down the valley even into Texas, for a distance of more than a hundred miles, the face of the land will be transformed. The formal dedication marked the completion of one of Uncle Sam's biggest jobs. SHOT BY HUNTER TOMAHAWK, Wis., Oct. 20.—Fred Ziemendorf, local merchant, was shot in the face while driving near Gilberts late Wednesday. Several shots from a charge of bird shot entered his face. ## American Reporter In Old London

BY J. W. PEGLER
LONDON, Sept. 26. (By Mail.)—It's straw colored and silky and can be seen with the naked eye on sunshiny days. Sometimes the boy re-

Cents per Pound

One of it sold in Wisconsin than any other one brand.
It is so thoroughly cleaned before being put in the can that there can be no foreign taste in the entire process of blending, roasting and packaging it is not touched by human hands. That's one of the reasons why there is more "Old Time Coffee" sold in Wisconsin than any other one brand.

John Hoffman & Sons Co.
Milwaukee
Note: Our name on Canned Foods guarantees highest quality always porter himself can see it when he gets his face close to the mirror in his hall bedroom and manipulates the single electric light that's made and provided.

Then he runs a finger over his lip, feeling the struggling bristles and remarks kind of inwardly, "by gosh, it is growing."

Pretty soon, say by Christmas, it threatens to become a full-fledged ale-strainer; a soprano mustache just like the army officers wear. Then this American may bound about the boulevards in gay abandon, without that conspicuous, naked feeling.

He'll be a regular Londoner; a tea-drinking, haw-hawing denizen of the dandling gloom.
Already he buys his cigarettes by the ounce and carries them loose in his side coat pocket with a box of matches as big as a Minnetonka bungalow. Aye, that and more—for he hugs his silver-mounted walking furniture wherever he goes and leaves his shoes outside the bedroom door at night to be cleaned, knowing they won't be swiped.

His London boarding house might be more comfortable but still escape the curse of luxury. But romance lurks within, which partly compensates for the rest of it.

One-thirty-one Boston Squire is where our hero hangs his millinery. Step right up, gentle reader, and visit the blonde, give ear to the gurgle of musical soup and learn how to chauff an English bathtub.

Having shivered through a long span of winters in the meagre heat of grate fires the wealthy and genial landlords of London still hold out against the furnace. Some have installed regular bathtubs as a concession to progress but the oaf who has to run a gas thing-a-ma-jig like a plumber to heat his spoonful of water.

But to get down to the dining room—

The blonde sits over in a corner at a little table of her own, right rear the window, so she won't have to meet the transients. Slit-eyed and sinuous, topped with a crown of sunset waves, she is the reigning queen of the hut; captainess of the polygot hark.

She is French, and, gentlemen, some blonde.

Number six, at the main trough, the gink with the hedge on his chin is a Belgian Herr. The old boy with the hilly-goatee, is a Russian. Wait the soup comes on.

Ah, the Herr strikes up a sprightly melody, rich and full-whiskered with lilting cadences and gurgly trills. Its symphony in pea-minor, with a consomme obligato played by the man from Moscow.

They top the bill of fare, these men from the continent. Others there are at the cosmopolitan board, it is true, including two youths from the middle west, but they are a mere backdrop for the star act.

An American soon loses track of his breakfast grapefruit when he moves into this boarding house. Instead he gets marmalade. Cream is a luxury of the beastly rich; boiled milk is served in its stead when the ordinary mutt has coffee. Plap-jacks haven't been heard of yet and the only variation from bacon and eggs is eggs and bacon.

The chef is a wonder. He comes from Paris and has a fit every time the street pianos play "La Marseillaise." Chef, however, is one of those absent patriots—too busy to fight. He goes out in the evening after supper is served and at closing time is delivered, thoroughly boiled, to the residential doorstep.

Chef swelled up like a pneumatic mattress when one of his American guests called him "Major" but he never heard of Coney's army.

This is the place and these are the people described in letters to the folks in Chicago. It is not an unusual house for London and the people are merely routine folks. Wait till that mustache grows—then the boy reporter will be one of them.

RED LIPS AND HEALTH

The first place that anemia, or thin blood, shows in is the lips and gums and the membranes that line the eye lids. You may be naturally pale and still be healthy but when these membranes lose their bright red color your blood is deficient in quantity or color.

Thin blood is a danger. It invites disease. The organisms of the blood fight off disease germs. Thin blood means less power to do this. For instance, when you cut yourself it does not heal so quickly if your blood is thin and weak.

To build up the blood there is one remedy that has been a household word for a generation, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks and lips and drive away that unnatural tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight, good wholesome food and fresh air will do the rest.

Two books, "Building Up the Blood" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" give just the information that every mother of a growing girl needs. They are free. Write for them today to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Eastern Star Lodge Initiates Hundredth Member and the Event Is Marked by a Large Gathering

RUSHFORD, Minn.—(Special.)—The recent banquet given at Lewiston by members of the Eastern Star lodge of that place, took from Rushford a good crowd, numbering thirty-eight, who made the trip by auto; starting from Rushford about four o'clock in the afternoon and returning the same evening. The banquet celebrated the initiation, in the Lewiston lodge, of the one hundredth member, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Pierce, of Fremont and another gentleman making up the number. The two gentlemen, of course were made members of the Masonic lodge, the lady joining the O. E. S. The Lewiston members had long ago promised themselves a splendid celebration when they were able to welcome into the fold the hundred members for which they were striving. A clear, moonlight evening, with frosty and bracing air made the trip home for the Rushford contingent a pleasure long to be remembered, as was also the fine manner in which they and other visiting members were welcomed at the Lewiston lodge rooms.
